

Join our Learning Team

The Turner Prize is the UK's foremost award for contemporary art. Over recent decades the award has played a significant role in provoking debate about visual art and promoting public interesting contemporary art. Now in its 29th year, Turner Prize 2013 is held in Derry-Londonderry as part of the UK City of Culture programme. This is the first time the award has been held outside of England, and follows its successful showing at Baltic in Gateshead, in 2011.

We are looking for artists and educators to join our panel of facilitators

What you will do:

As part of the panel of facilitators, you will deliver tours and workshops to school groups, young people, families and children, older people, third level students and to the wider public.

Who you are:

- You are an arts education practitioner, a visual artist or an educator who will have:
- A strong interest in contemporary art
- A good track record working in formal/informal education settings with a variety of audiences
- The ability to analyse and synthesise information quickly
- The ability to confidently deliver the diverse programme to all sectors of our audience

Preference will be given to those who:

- Have relevant academic qualifications
